SCHOOL
JUNE 24 - JULY 19 2019

2 TRACKS WITHIN 1 PROGRAMME

- INTERNATIONAL - EU AFFAIRS
- FRENCH LANGUAGE AND SOCIETY

LILLE

With its decidedly international focus, Sciences Po Lille welcomes exceptional students and prepares them for high-level careers in international organizations, NGO's, European institutions.

Lille is a dynamic cultural center, with museums, concerts, theater, several malls and wonderful boutiques in the old town.

This privileged geographical position, enhanced by its high-quality transport network, makes Lille a real gateway to Europe.

THE 2019 SUMMER SCHOOL OFFERS AN INNOVATIVE PROGRAMME AROUND 2 TRACKS:

Students will divide their time in Lille between one or two tracks and a variety of field trips and social events.

International and French Professors will have the opportunity to teach small groups of students and propose methodological and interactive approaches.

• International - EU Affairs

Students will focus on International and European affairs, including issues such as the Eurozone crisis, European identity and values, migration and also conflict resolution approaches.

• French Language and Society

The French language and society module aims to enhance and perfect their language skills as well as providing some understanding of the contemporary aspects of French society.

COURSE DESCRIPTIONS⁽²⁾

INTERNATIONAL – EU AFFAIRS⁽³⁾

RETHINKING THE EUROPEAN UNION

This module takes an in-depth look at the state of the European Union in the 21st century in the wake of the Eurozone crisis. Following an overview of the origins of the current crisis, this module aims to examine critically its consequences and broad effects on the European Union. The module attempts to characterise the European Union as a polity-in-the-making, investigating how far integration has advanced in a number of areas. In the light of the current crisis, it discusses the challenges to the traditional pillars of EU integration – identity, legitimacy and solidarity – in turn questioning the sustainability of the present model of regional integration.

APPROACHES TO MANAGING CONFLICT IN A GLOBALIZED WORLD

This course desires to link globalization and conflict management. Considering Globalization, as an accelerator of social change might at the same time put the light on a catalyst for conflict, irritating the tensions in divers' societies. However, it can also hasten conflict resolution. It will be important to identify the interconnectedness, apparently more intense years after years, which are one of the main characteristic of the global context because they have unplanned consequences, no matter if we look at conflicts' outbreak or realities or if we consider conflict resolution. Because the world becomes more globalized it leads us to address together problems such as migration, the environment and security, we need to be able to draw on a more robust array of conflict approaches.

REASSESSING THE PLACE OF RELIGION IN THE EUROPEAN PUBLIC SPHERE

This course is an examination of the social and political dynamics currently shaping the management of religions in the European public sphere. The focus will be particularly on the intertwined relationship between religions and migration as it is represented by the notion of "Muslim immigrants" reaching "secular Europe".

This dichotomous and simplistic view has been negatively affected by Europe's multiple crises, which escalate with the resurgence of an "Islamic" terrorist threat and the growth of right-wing extremism and populist movements. Therefore, the course engages in critically investigating the multifaceted meanings of 'secular', 'religious' and 'secular public realm' in today's Europe.

Presenting the historical legacies and the different types of political secularism currently at play in the European context, it closely analyses specific controversial issues, including wearing ostentatious religious symbols and the debates on the headscarf ban; Islamic preaching and the construction of mosques; the activities of Islamic transnational religious networks; and the flourishing of halal economy (allowed by Islam) which now includes a wide range of sectors, from sexual segregated swimming pools to hotels serving no alcohol.

FRENCH LANGUAGE AND SOCIETY⁽³⁾

FRENCH LANGUAGE

This course aims to develop students' ability to demonstrate some understanding of the French language, as well as speak, read and write French with relative proficiency.

In small groups, students will gain fluency in French while increasing their knowledge of France. Professors will help students to develop their communication skills through regular class discussions, one-on-one conversations, role plays and oral presentations with classmates.

FRENCH SOCIETY AND POLITICS

We offer to the students that they learn about contemporary French society and cultures by examining its products, practices and perspectives through thematic study.

This seminar intends to present the main aspects of the French society, compared with other European industrialized countries. Indeed, the main objective is to analyze how the French society works, taking into account some of the main historical steps which established the basis of the welfare system, of the labor market, the role of women in society, the system of education, globalization etc.
